Dear Friends,

Even when the world changes at the fast pace we're experiencing these days, FSA's services and approaches adjust so that we can continue to meet real community needs.

This year, Santa Maria celebrates its 50th anniversary. In 2024, Family Service Agency will celebrate 125 years of supporting Santa Barbara County. And as you will see in this report, our commitment to children, families, and seniors is as strong as it was in our founding year of 1899.

Together with you, FSA invests in people's lives, creating long-lasting impacts. We do this through strength-based strategies such as:

- teaching community members about resources available and how to use them,
- helping children and adults work through their traumas and build even more resilience for the future,
- teaching solid and positive parenting skills,
- helping seniors and their caregivers with skills to adapt to new life circumstances, and
- working collaboratively with community partners to ensure the best possible continuum of assistance for those in need.

Our staff of therapists, family advocates, facilitators and mentors are community-based and skilled in connecting with youth, families and seniors in need.

Through partnerships like yours, together we strengthen the fabric of our families and communities. Thank you for sharing FSA's mission and for the confidence that you have bestowed upon us.

Our sincere gratitude,

Building Confidence One Family at a Time

When Arturo was laid off, he was reluctant to seek help, but the motivation to support the needs of his family eventually brought him to one of our Family Resource Centers.

After spending time with a dedicated Family Advocate, Arturo began to understand how FSA could help with unemployment assistance and addressing the immediate needs of his family for food and transportation. While Arturo sought new employment, our Family Advocate helped him apply for and receive rental assistance, CalFresh and health insurance for his family.

Interested in learning how to better provide for his family, Arturo enrolled in our Dedicated Dads program. There he gained more confidence in being a stepfather and learned skills to improve the family dynamics. He was so impressed with the class that he encouraged his partner, Marissa, to attend a parenting class with her children. He and Marissa also enrolled in the Connected Couples, Connected Families course where they improved their communication and learned to better support each other.

Marissa, who had experienced childhood trauma and abuse, especially benefited from the class. “She can handle stress better and talk to the children more calmly,” said Arturo.

Arturo eventually found stable employment. The family continues to work toward financial stability. Having gained the knowledge of how to access services and an increased confidence in their parenting abilities, they are more hopeful for their family’s future.

A Student Improves Attendance

Monica suffered from severe anxiety in class and had a hard time showing up to school. When Monica did attend class, she couldn't stop fidgeting. She would pull her hair out and cry when she was unable to complete a task. Sometimes, Monica would have to leave school early because she complained of stomach aches and headaches.

Our School-Based Counselor met with Monica and her parents to determine some coping tools to alleviate Monica's anxiety about attending school. With the counselor's guidance, Monica practiced calming exercises at home, such as deep breathing exercises and grounding exercises. She was also encouraged to write down her worries and put them in a worry box.

Almost immediately, this helped Monica to reduce her level of anxiety and arrive to school successfully. Monica became excited about going to school and seemed more focused and calm. Instead of crying when things were difficult, she asked the teacher for help.

During the months of ongoing treatment, the counselor and Monica created a tool kit of coping exercises that Monica could easily access when feelings of anxiety would surface. Over the course of the school year, Monica was able to implement many of these tools, which allowed her to participate in class more freely and feel more confident. By the end of therapy, Monica's level of anxiety lessened—no more stomach aches, hair pulling, and fidgeting—and she expressed feeling more comfortable going to school.

Responding in Times of Crisis

When news spread about a large apartment fire that displaced families of Santa Maria, a call came in to FSA for assistance. Since many of the families had children enrolled in the Santa Maria Bonita School District, our Family Outreach Advocates (FOA) jumped into action.

Utilizing resources at the school district and trauma-informed training, FOA staff provided a safe space at the children's schools to meet with these families. They helped them connect with the Red Cross and receive immediate financial aid.

The team assessed each family's needs and discussed available resources. They helped the families understand the role of the Red Cross so they would not feel fear or hesitation, and they followed up with each family to make sure they could get to their appointments and receive assistance.

But the care for these families didn't stop there. The team reached out to a local church and other nonprofits for donations of beds, tables, chairs, silverware, dish towels, towels, clothing, and anything else families needed to help them rebuild their lives.

The efforts of the FOA team is just one example of the work that we do for families every day. Your support helps make it possible for us to respond quickly and promote the resilience of families in our community, especially during times of trauma.

Reducing Isolation, Improving Wellbeing

Amada had been the primary caregiver for her beloved husband Aldo, who passed away in January. She was referred to FSA because she was feeling depressed and lonely with some pressing physical health challenges.

We arranged for Amada to see one of our therapists to help her deal with her feelings and build coping skills to improve her mood and reduce her isolation. The first order of business for our therapist was to help Amada contact her physician to set up an appointment and address her health issues.

Our therapist discovered that Amada's home needed some adjustments to make it safer so that she could continue to live there for as long as she desired. We contacted local agencies who do home repair for qualifying seniors and arranged for grab bars to be installed as well as repairs of a deteriorating bathroom floor that was becoming more and more dangerous.

Our therapist helped Amada identify factors contributing to loneliness and brainstormed about ways to reduce isolation. Amada decided she wanted to attend church more often and go to activities at the local senior center to meet people.

Transportation was a barrier for Amada, so we arranged with a local non-profit to provide transportation. Amada is now an active member at her church, attends the arts and crafts events at the senior center and reports less feelings of isolation. Amada is grateful for the mental health services and safety improvements so she can age in place as long as possible.

Ensuring a Healthy Community

Aiding Families Displaced By Guadalupe Floods

Staff at The Little House by the Park (LHP) in Guadalupe knew the situation was dire the morning of January 10th, 2023, when the phone started ringing.

Guadalupe had received 3.4 inches of rain, causing flooding, and residents were calling for family support services. Families had lost their most valuable items and their kids were waking up to muddy water while sleeping on the floor in the middle of the night. A senior resident found herself up to her chest in water.

LHP staff assisted in mobilizing community and civic organizations and directed residents to City Hall, where they received assistance and information, including helping Mixteco community members with translation. Advocates contacted hotels to secure donations of blankets and pillows for those in need.

Over the next few weeks, LHP remained open as a haven for support.

The flooding displaced ten families and a total of 47 individuals. LHP worked with Guadalupe City staff and the County Housing Authority to secure housing and helped them obtain basic needs, including clothing and housing.

“It was heartwarming to see the community come together to help its own,” said one staff member. “We felt like we were First Responders! So many residents gave their time and donated household items to help their neighbors. It made me proud to be a part of this community.”
